

Village Hall Play Area

Detail of the 'gym':

There is a continuous 'trail' near the back wall, starting with a very simple balance beam and getting progressively more difficult as you go along, culminating in 'monkey bars'. The names of the items are self explanatory, but there are also pictures on the web site (www.sheepscombe.org). There are then log steps that go across to the items at the 'front'.

At the front, the existing double swing and the net frame remain, as they are still usable (by kids of all ages) – with log steps joining them and also joining the swing to the old tree stump. Then there is a basket (or group) swing (replacing the single swing that has been removed on safety grounds); this can be used by all ages, from toddlers to adults! The end of the circuit is an the open structured 'static gym', aimed at older children and adults; this is shown in more detail to the left.

Finally, and separate from the circuit, there is a basket ball hoop with backing board fixed to the store room wall and, below it, a series of climbing holds that provide a traverse along the wall; these take up almost no space.
